Short bio:

I was born in Bari, in the south of Italy. After a classical education, I decided to change completely field and I signed up for Biology degree.

After the bachelor, I moved to Viterbo to complete my studies.

After I got my master degree in Molecular and Cellular Biology, I won an Erasmus partnership which I spent in Darmstadt (Germany) in TU.

Meanwhile I applied for a PhD position in France and I got it straight after Currently, I'm in a cotutelle project, divided between France and Italy.

What do you expect from this training?

I hope to complete my formation and to learn about new techniques and discovers which will be helpful for me during my PhD.

Bonus question: What motivates you to get out of bed in the morning?

A life without an aim is a boring existence.
